

Adding Streaming Media Course Reserves to a Canvas Site

Access to course reserve materials provided directly by Media Services is done through the Libraries' Media Collections Online service. You can provide students access to these materials through your Canvas site by adding the IU Media Collections Online tool to your site's navigation. For an example image of what this looks like in your Canvas site, see the example image at the bottom of this page.

If you need assistance with adding this process, please contact Media Services. If there is an urgent problem and Media Services is unavailable, contact Media Collections Online support.

How To Guide - Adding IU Media Collections Online to Site Navigation

Step 1: Go to Canvas Site's Settings Page

In the Course Navigation Menu, click the Settings link (this will most likely be at the bottom of the Course Navigation list).

Navigation Tab

Step 2: Enable the IU Media Collections Online link in Navigation

This will add IU Media Collections Online to currently enabled items in the course navigation. You can follow these instructions to re-order your Course Navigation menu.

Step 3: Save the Navigation

Step 4: Done!

The screenshot shows the Media Collections Online interface within a Canvas course. The top navigation bar includes the Indiana University logo, the course name "MCO LTI Test", and the user name "joncamer | Sign out". The main header reads "Media Collections Online" with a search bar and "Browse" button. Below the header, there are tabs for "MCO LTI Test", "Manage Selected Items (0)", and "Playlists".

On the left, a vertical sidebar contains navigation links: Home, Announcements, Media Collections Online (highlighted), Discussions, Grades, Syllabus, Conferences, Chat, IU Libraries, People, Pages, Files, and Outcomes. Below these are icons for Account, Dashboard, Courses, Calendar, Inbox, Commons, and Help.

The main content area shows a search result for "External Group > MCO LTI Test". It displays "1 - 2 of 2" items, sorted by Relevance, with 10 items per page. The first item is titled "1. 'Headless' metadata for library discovery: NYU's Ichabod project (33:56)". It includes a video thumbnail, the date "2015-06-09", and the main contributors: "Kassel, Carol; Pechekhonova, Ekaterina; Lovins, Daniel". The summary states: "Presentation at Open Repositories 2015 (OR2015), the 10th International Conference on Open Repositories, Indianapolis, Indiana, in session P3A: Integrating with External Systems." There are checkboxes for "Select All" and "Select".

Media Collections Online is now available as an item in the course navigation. Clicking the Media Collections Online navigation link will display all of the video items Media Services has permitted your class to view, within the date range Media Services has provided.

Adding Media Collections Online as a Module Item

The Media Collections Online view of your course services set up by Media Services can also be added as a Module item within your Canvas site. For instructions on adding an External Tool to your site's Modules, please see the Canvas help page How do I add an external tool as a module item? The name of the External Tool is IU Media Collections Online.
